

MPs' support crucial to charity's success

Keith Fernett, CEO, Caritas Anchor House, writes:

With everything that's been going on in Parliament across the summer, including the Brexit vote and the comings and goings of senior political figures, it's easy to forget what motivates some of the more down-to-earth and hard-working politicians.

Most go into politics because they truly want to make a difference. Later in their careers though, many reflect on how far they seem to be from their original vision and desire to make a difference to the lives of ordinary people.

Not so for Lyn Brown and Stephen Timms, who have continuously supported Newham homeless charity Caritas Anchor House.

Having recently won an ongoing battle with HMRC, we couldn't have made it without the amazing support and positive encouragement of our two local MP's.

Caritas Anchor House is now fair set to complete our amazing project – to build an additional 25 flats for homeless people in the borough, who whilst living at the facility, also acquire the skills, support and encouragement to rebuild their lives.
